

The Garden Alasdair McIntosh

York-based professional photographer with more than 15 years' experience in architecture, interiors, gardens and landscape photography.

He is a published garden photographer, working with garden designers, landscape architects and other professionals to capture both planting and the structure and design of outdoor spaces.

Alasdair bought his first camera before his teens and developed his photography through landscapes, with a particular interest in long exposures.

He grew up in Scotland, where the landscape helped inspire his enduring interest in the natural environment and dramatic light. His work combines careful composition, styling and technical control with a particular emphasis on light, atmosphere and the character of a place.

Interiors photography has featured in:

- Ideal Home
- Your Home
- Living North
- Yorkshire Living.

Published

York: A Journey Through the Seasons

(a 200-page collection of more than 160 photographs taken across the city over 15 years)

